

Design Deviations

Due to time constraints / realisations during development we have deviated from our initial design in the following ways:

Swiping has been replaced with buttons

Due to development and testing being done on laptops (and not an actual phone) we haven't been able to implement swiping controls.

Detailed weather breakdowns (hour-by-hour and day-by-day) don't share backgrounds with the main screen

Ideally the backgrounds of the main screen and the detailed breakdown would be identical however, due to time constraints, we haven't been able to implement this.

Settings page

Our final prototype included functionality for switching to a settings screen however, during development, we realised there are no useful settings a user would actually want to change. As such our implementation does not include a settings screen.
